

 SUNVIT

The New Face of Anatolian Tradition: Sunvit

Ceramics is derived from the soil that gives life to the earth, and in its simplest definition, it is the product of soil fired at a very high temperature. It is known that the first ceramics were produced in Anatolia in 6000 BC and it is an example of craftsmanship that spread from these lands to the world.

Sunvit has set out to carry the traces of time to the present day and to offer aesthetic solutions to basic needs with an innovative perspective. Although it has only been in existence for a short time, it has offered a brand new experience to countless customers by bridging the gap between traditional and modern designs with its nearly 40 product range. It has shaped the fertile Anatolian lands with its own vision and supported domestic production and employment.

In short, Sunvit aims to be the new face of the Anatolian tradition and aims to proudly represent Türkiye in the world in the future.

Health From Soil, The Source of Life

Ceramic, which has a long history, is obtained by breaking down completely natural earth and rocks such as clay, kaolin, quartz and feldspar. These raw materials are mixed in a certain proportion and made into dough and pressing process is applied. At 1100 degrees, the product output is provided by firing in the oven.

Adding Comfort to Needs: Western-Style Details

Toilet & Cisterns

During archaeological excavations, seated toilets have been discovered in the bath areas belonging to the Hittite Civilization, which dates back approximately 4000 years ago. Inspired by the legacy left by civilizations, modern Western-style toilets have been developed, leading to comfort-oriented designs.

Bringing together the past and present technologies, Sunvit aims to provide quality to its customers with its production of toilets and cisterns that ensure maximum efficiency.
